CLUBS

AFRICANA CLUB

The purpose of the Africana club is to celebrate the African continent and its people. We achieve this by fostering an awareness of the peoples, histories, and cultures of Africa on the Bates campus. Furthermore, the club creates a platform on which all students in the Bates campus interested in Africa can interact with each other closely and also share their thoughts, and experiences with the Bates community at large. Similarly, Africana club brings together students who want to study abroad in Africa and those who have been or lived there. The club also develops an avenue for connecting its members with Bates alumni who have interests and/or connections with the African continent.

AMANDALA

The mission of Amandala! is to promote global causes that directly affect people of the African Diaspora and foster a campus and local community understanding of the rich lives and cultures of people of African descent. Through organizing events and programs that raise cultural and political awareness of Black people on campus, Amandla! hopes to ignite racial tolerance and social change in our communities.

ANIME CLUB

meets once a week on Sundays to watch episodes of Japanese anime series or movies. The meetings typically last for an hour to two hours and are a great way to learn about anime and take a study break. In the past, we've watched series such as Cowboy Bebop, Baccano, and FLCL, and movies by directors Hayao Miyazaki and Satoshi Kon, among others.

ART COMMONS

is a student run organization made up of people dedicated to student art. Our space in Chase Hall holds events like art parties, mold making workshops, wall painting sessions, and many other artistic pursuits throughout the year! We focus on using the empty space in Chase Hall for student purposes, and in addition to creating art in the space, we also display student work. Any student is welcome to come and use the space to hold an event or just create art. Art Commons is a place for creative Batesies to come together in the name of student art!

BADMINTON CLUB

meets weekly on Sundays from 4-6 pm in the Gray Cage. The club offers an opportunity for Bates students to play badminton in a relaxed setting on campus. It's a great way to have fun on the weekend!

BAHÁ'Í ASSOCIATION

promotes the unity of mankind and the principles of the Bahá'í Faith such as the need for equal rights and privileges for men and women of all backgrounds, the harmony of science and religion, and the unfettered search after truth. The Association, open to all members of the College community and their families, aims to foster understanding, love, and fellowship in the Bates community through lectures and other public meetings, social gatherings, and service projects.

BALLROOM SOCIETY

is open to anyone who would like to learn how to ballroom dance. All levels of experience are welcome and no partner is necessary. The team practices rhythm (cha cha, rhumba, swing) and smooth (waltz, tango, foxtrot, Viennese waltz). The team practices two to three times a week, focusing on preparing students to compete at the inter-collegiate competitions. We usually attend around five competitions a year. We also go to ballroom social dances in Portland, bring professional ballroom dancers for workshops, and host small social dances on campus.

BATES BUDDIES

is a club that fosters the relationship between Bates and the Lewiston community. Pairs of Bates students volunteer weekly at a local elementary school during recess and lunch with a group of three to five children. For only one hour per week, Bates students act as mentors and role models to local first, second and third graders.

BATES BUILDING HOUSES (Habitat for Humanity)

Our organization is a Bates club BATES BUILDING HOUSES and a HABITAT FOR HUMANITY CHAPTER. We work to provide decent, affordable homes for families in need in the Lewiston/Auburn area and abroad through build trips, fundraisers, and advocacy. We are active on a weekly basis through events like the waffle haus, dodgeball tournaments, trips to the REstore, build trips, and much more.

BATES CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP

is a large and diverse family of students. We strive to grow in love for God and God's people of every ethnicity and culture, and to come to a deeper understanding of the Scriptures and of God's purposes in the world. There are many small groups that meet weekly for Bible study, discussion, and prayer. Current small groups within "BCF" are... Justified Liturgical Dance Group, the Spanish Bible Study, and Evening Prayer. There are also larger weekly meetings - Worship Wednesdays - for everyone to gather together for worship, sharing and planning. The Fellowship hosts many events throughout the year. Many of them are service opportunities on campus or in the Lewiston community and others are just fun times for the campus to gather and share His Love. Our activities are always open to the entire Bates community - students, faculty and staff. BCF is associated with InterVarsity Christian Fellowship.

BATES EMERGENCY MEDICAL SERVICES (EMS)

is a Maine licensed EMS service that provides emergency care to the Bates College community. All members are volunteers that have completed the Emergency Medical Technician course and the service is entirely student run. Bates EMT's volunteer their time to be on call and are ready to respond to any campus emergency 24 hours a day, 7 days a week whenever school is in session. While on call, EMT's carry radios to communicate with other crew members and Bates Security. Bates EMS not only provides medical care to those in need, but offer lectures and training sessions to keep their EMT skills proficient. They also sponsor blood drives for the college and hold information sessions in residences at the beginning of the year to give information about the service and campus safety.

BATES ENERGY ACTION MOVEMENT (BEAM)

is dedicated to taking direct action to fight anthropogenic global climate change through political participation, advocacy and outreach. BEAM is part of the international youth climate movement and regularly partakes in nation-wide and global campaigns to promote progressive climate legislation, climate justice, the development of renewable energy sources and the growth of green jobs. There is no time to wait for someone else to solve this problem - the responsibility is ours and we are rising to the challenge!

BATES COLLEGE STUDENT GOVERNMENT

is the student government of Bates College. It consists of two branches: the Executive Council (EC) and the Representative Assembly (RA). The EC consists of the president, vice presidents, treasurer, and a representative from each elected advisory committee. The RA consists of elected representatives from every class and housing unit. At weekly public meetings, the BCSG acts as representatives of the student body, voicing concerns and support, engaging in advocacy, and articulating student interests. This continues outside the weekly meetings through the work of nearly forty committees. These committees determine policies in areas ranging from academics to parking, discipline to residential life, and much more. The BCSG administers over $350,000 in Student Activities funds each year, allocating the money amongst various student clubs and organizations.

BATES COLLEGE TELEVISION (BCTV)

is back on the air! After being dormant for ten years, this important communication venue was started back up in 2007. For the past three years we've gathered a talented group of students who have worked hard to learn the in's and out's of television production. Our content has included "Bobcasts" (news broadcasts named after our mascot); Bates Cribs (spoofing on MTV Cribs); "American Idol" and several premier screenings. With help from our advisors and school we have collected a great deal of support from the Bates community.

BATES OUTING CLUB (B.O.C.)

was founded in 1920 and is among the oldest collegiate outing clubs in the country and the first at a private college to include both men and women from the beginning. Every member of the Bates College community is technically a member of the club. Its administration is set up into officers, directors, and a Council composed of active members. The directors are largely responsible for the administrative aspects of the club while the officers run the outing activities. The organization offers year-round trips throughout New England for hiking, climbing, skiing, canoeing, surfing, and kayaking and many more. Every year the club hosts activities including two Clambakes, Winter Carnival and a hike up Katahdin, each of which remain popular campus-wide events.

BRIDGES FOR PEACE

The purpose of Bridges for Peace is to generate a solidarity movement between mainstream Muslims and other American groups through a series of events on campus, such as bringing high-profile speakers and organizing mass rallies. Though there are religious groups on campus who are working for peace and justice, it is important to have a club that is not affiliated with any particular religion so that everyone can relate to this cause without the barrier of beliefs. Regardless of religion, attaining peace is a universal goal. The name "Bridges for Peace" reflects the organization's desire and motivation to create a platform for peace and understanding between Muslims and other American groups.

BROOKS QUIMBY DEBATE COUNCIL

Debate and Bates are practically synonymous. Always among the top debating schools in the nation, Bates is currently one of the top 25 teams in the world. In past years, we have hosted the North Americans Championships, featuring the top debaters from Canada and the U.S, along with other prestigious events. Debate is a great way to develop your mind, compete successfully against the top schools in the country, travel around the country and the world, and have a lot of fun. No prior experience is necessary; some of our best debaters started while at Bates.

CATHOLIC STUDENT COMMUNITY

is the Roman Catholic affiliated organization at Bates College. The group works alongside the College's Catholic Chaplain in organizing weekly Sunday Mass and other spiritual activities such as prayer/discussion meetings and dinner meetings. The group is also active in the Lewiston community, volunteering with local churches and charitable organizations.

CHASE HALL COMMITTEE

is the primary, student run, programming board on campus. Working with a traditionally large budget, the club plans, publicizes, and runs a variety of events over the course of the year and into Short Term. Events usually include a major music concert, a comedy series, the Halloween and 80's Dances, Big Prize BINGO, Drop Everything and Play aka DEAP (a free music and activities event during short term), the coordination of the nation's 2nd oldest Winter Carnival, and other various fun, diverse acts. This is a great way to interact with the student body as well as learn event planning and marketing skills.

CHESS CLUB

The members of the chess club are people who love to play chess. There are people from a variety of levels, from just learning the names of the pieces and what each piece does to being able to practice advance strategies from a number of possibilities. No matter what skill level you are, everyone is welcome and encouraged to come and play. We meet once a week and run tournaments as well. We have even had an intercollegiate tournament in the past.

CLUB MED

We're a group for anyone interested in a career in healthcare including medicine, dentistry, nursing, public health, etc. and we work to get students together and let them know about all the opportunities out there in the field. For example we've had alumni come to talk about their schooling and careers after college as well as discussions with professionals from the community on subjects such as the health care opportunities available in Maine.

COMPETITIVE SKI TEAM

We had a great season this year! We started the season at Saddleback and finished up at Sugarloaf. Both returners and new racers joined us for the season, training at Lost Valley and racing on the weekends. Winter 2011 was a successful season for both Alpine men and women as both teams won the Division: the men beat out UMaine Farmington in the final race of the season and the women's team went undefeated throughout! We're hoping for another successful season in 2012!

The Crosstones have always been known for its down-to-earth nature, humor, and energy, which manifests in its songs. Repertoire ranges from the light classic rock of Billy Joel's "Lullaby" to the upbeat energy of The Jackson Five's "I Want You Back" simply put, we like all types of music. In 2009, the Crosstones toured the West Coast, performing at colleges and high schools throughout the Bay Area of California as well as Southern California. In 2010, they decided to go international, and visited Montreal. The group released their newest album in the fall 2010.

CYCLING TEAM

Heart Rate. Lactate Threshold. Power-to-weight ratio. These are all important considerations in the sport of bike racing...but we don't care about them at all!! The Bates College Cycling Team is a laid-back bunch of guys and girls dedicated to racing their bikes. We train year-around and have fun. We race mountain bikes in the fall and road bikes in the spring. If you are at all interested in making bikes go fast and hanging out with awesome people in a no-pressure setting, this is the club for you.

DANCE CLUB

aims to connect more Bates students, faculty, staff, and members of the Lewiston-Auburn community with the world of dance. Specifically, we want members of the Bates community to experience styles of dance not offered through the college. Our club gives students a way to maintain or discover a love of dance in a way which is not dependent upon being a dance minor or a member of the Modern Dance Company. Based on input from Bates students and academic departments, we bring guest artists to campus to give workshops, performances, and lectures throughout the year. We also take advantage of performances going on in Lewiston, Portland, and Boston; and invite anyone interested to contribute to a student run - choreographed show put on during short term.

are one of Bates College's two all-male a cappella groups. Since 1957 this group of about fourteen charming men has been entertaining audiences at Bates, throughout New England, and even across seas with their diverse repertoire and sound. The most notable of the group's travels is their annual spring tour, which has taken them to London, Iceland, Mexico, and beyond. The Deansmen sing songs by artists such as Maroon 5, Stevie Wonder, Steely Dan, The Blind Boys of Alabama, Kool & The Gang, and The Who, all of which have been arranged for a cappella by current members of The Deansmen, or alumni. The group is best known for its ability to maintain high quality musicianship and seriousness, while letting loose on stage and delivering a powerful performance.

We practice Monday through Friday and have games on Saturday. Contrary to popular belief, you do not need to be of gargantuan size to play rugby. We need people players of various body types to play the all of the positions. Do not worry about having previous experience as almost all collegiate rugby players do not have previous experience. Rugby is an intense game requiring you to push your body and your mind to the limit.

RUGBY CLUB (W)

Ladies, we want you: rugby is not just for men anymore! We're a competitive, but fun-loving bunch. During the fall, we practice Monday through Friday and have games on Saturdays against teams all over New England. We just recently moved from D2 to D3, making our upcoming 2010 season full of promise and excitement. We warmly welcome people of every size and ability. Anyone can play rugby! With fifteen players on the field at once, we have a position for everyone. No previous experience is needed as almost none of our players come into the sport knowing anything about it. Come learn how to tackle, pass backwards, kick some butt and make some long-lasting friendships!

SAILING CLUB

Bates Sailing is a team of racers that competes throughout the fall and spring in the competitive NEISA district. The team also offers members of the Bates community the opportunity to learn and enjoy the sport.

With its vibrant culture, bubbling spirit and teeming knowledge, South Asia is a growing attraction in the world and has proven to be of much interest to students from America and the other countries represented at Bates. Founded on the enthusiasm of South Asian students at Bates yearning to share their heritage with their fellow students, this club truly enriches Bates' multicultural life by organizing cultural events from South Asia such as "Holi" (The World's Biggest Water Fight) and "Diwali" (The Festival of Lights) and hosting South Asian cooking nights and Bollywood movie nights is the one and only improvisational comedy group at Bates. They perform both short-form as well as long-form improv and continually explore and experiment with different types of long-form improv structures such as the Harold, the Ascat and the BAT, a show that is performed entirely in the dark! The Bedfellows perform biweekly at different venues all over campus as well as at venues in Lewiston such as The Blake Street Towers retirement home. They also perform at other colleges such as Skidmore College for the annual National College Comedy Festival that Skidmore hosts every year. The Bedfellows bring professional improv and sketch comedy groups to Bates, who in the past, have included The Upright Citizens Brigade Touring Company and The Late Night Players. The Bates community always eagerly anticipates the annual Bedfellow Holiday Show because it is the last show of first semester and it is the only scripted show that the Bedfellows write and rehearse prior to performing. The main goal of The Strange Bedfellows is to bring laughter to the Bates community and the surrounding areas of Lewiston and Auburn using the increasingly popular art form of improvisational comedy as a tool and a medium.

STUDENT

The Bates Student has served as the College's main and entirely student-run newspaper since 1873 and is published weekly while classes are in session.The Bates Student, the voice of Bates College since 1873, publishes weekly, covering news, arts, sports and forum on campus and in the community. The staff burns the midnight oil on Sunday evenings and all night Monday to produce the newspaper for Tuesday delivery. The Student is entirely student run and edited without an advisor or any administrative oversight.

STUDENTS FOR JUSTICE IN PALESTINE

This is a club at Bates College that consists of students interested in the Palestine/Israel conflict. The members believe that the Palestinian narrative is not understood in the United States; thus, many injustices against Palestinians occur without notice. Therefore, it is the goal of this club to present the Palestinian narrative to Bates through speakers, movies, forums, and dialogs. This also entails political activism and active participation in campus organization and publications by the members to bring awareness of the Israeli's and Palestinians working for peace. We believe that understanding the Palestinian narrative is vital for a lasting peace process in the Middle East. As we educate more Americans about Palestinians then, as a nation, we can take the appropriate steps towards a sustainable and just peace.

TAIKO CLUB

Bates Taiko Club meets once a week for official Taiko drumming lesson from instructor and additional meetings for practice purposes among members. In the past, Taiko Club has performed in Sangai Asian Night, International Club Coffee House and CBB Japan Fair. We also organized cultural activities for members such as watching Taiko performances in Boston.

TAKE NOTE

Take note is one of the two co-ed a cappella groups on campus. We sing a variety of songs from wide spectrum of genres, from classic tunes like "Eleanor Rigby" by the Beatles to modern day hits like Maino's "All the Above". We love to perform and do so at every chance we get, whether it be at a small, intimate concert, a campus wide a cappella jam, or an event in the LA community.

TRIATHLON CLUB

We are focused on bringing those who are interested, but necessarily experienced, in triathlons of any distance together to train hard and have lots of fun! Also, as an official USAT recognized club team, you can keep racing for Bates even after you graduate!

ULTIMATE FRISBEE

The legendary Orange Whip (Men's) and Cold Front (Women's) are two club teams committed to the sport and spirit of Ultimate. Practices are held 5 times per week, consisting of drills, scrimmaging, conditioning and games. We are a team that plays with intensity while always managing to have a great time. In the fall season we play as many tournaments as we can, traveling from Maine as far as Western Massachusetts and Rhode Island. In the winter, we keep it real with conditioning, wintery tourneys and a 4 v. 4 league. Spring makes way for men's and women's USA Conference Championships and Regionals.

UNITARIAN UNIVERSALIST ASSOCIATION

The Bates Unitarian universalist association is a liberally spiritual group that meets occasionally to discuss issues of religious curiosity and growth. In a trustful, tolerant, and laid-back environment, we encourage each other to ask and answer those big ´life questions´ that are anchored to the appreciation of our lives.

VOLLEYBALL CLUB

The Bates Volleyball Club is a competitive team that competes against schools from all around New England. We compet in the New England College Volleyball League. We are a club sport that is open to anyone who is willing to play. We compete against such schools as Bowdoin, Colby, University of Maine, Brown, Williams and many others.

WATER POLO CLUB (M)

The 2010 season was a very successful one for the Bates Men's Water Polo Team finishing third in our conference for the second year in a row. While the team may be far smaller in numbersand size than the rest of the clubs in the conference there is certainly no lack of talent. Lead by top scorers Jimmy Miller, Mike Hanley, and Dan Aupi Bates' offensive firepower often overwhelmed opposing teams. Goalie Will Strathmann emerged as one of the premiere goalies in the conference anchoring a much-improved Bates defense. With a significantly smaller team than the other upper echelon of clubs in the conference, Bates' success came in large part notfrom any single individual, but through teamwork and an unparalleled drive to win. Every member of this team is an essential component and played a huge role in why we have restored this club to being recognized as a formidable opponent in the North Atlantic Division. Thisteam is filled with a bunch competitors who love the sport, love to win, and love to have fun, acombination that has produced a 2010 season to be proud of. The Bates Men's Water Polo team has hope for an even better 2011 season with all of its members returning. Congrats on a great season fellas!

WATER POLO CLUB (W)

Women's Waterpolo is an athletic club that is open to everyone! No experience needed...If you can swim, you can play...Come get wet!!!

WOMEN'S RESOURCE CENTER

Women's Resource Center is a student-run group that promotes awareness, discussion, and activism concerning women's issues. The center is intended to serve as a safe and comfortable space for women on campus, to provide a place for students to exchange ideas and meet with peers and professors outside of an academic setting, to generate and encourage dialogue between Batesies regarding gender and women's issues at a local, national and international level and to facilitate action and raise awareness regarding gender and women's issues. The group's activities are meant to foster an atmosphere free of sexism, discrimination and violence on campus. We hold weekly meetings to discuss issues and plan events. Meetings are open to the entire Bates community.

WRBC

Bates' own fully licensed radio station broadcasting since 1958 at 91.5 FM. We represent one of Bates' most eclectic clubs, and feature live radio programming of all genres and styles 24 hours a day, 365 day of the year. We also host concerts and events throughout the school year, including our famed Trivia Night. Recent musicians we have hosted include FM Belfast, Yeasayer, and Crystal Castles. Listen online around the world at www.wrbcradio.com and find out what we are all about!

YOUNG ENTREPERNEURS CLUB

Bates Young Entreperneurs Club aims towards young fresh entrepreneurs willing to come up with unique business ideas and implementing them with budget restraints. The main purpose of the club is to hold a competition between these aspiring entrepreneurs (it has to be groups of between 2 - 5 people), and to decide on the group with the best entrepreneurial skills. The club has professors as the judging panel for the competition and also incorporates itself with other club events and activities. B.Y.E is a great way to experience what's out there, and make it fun at the same time. If you are up for challenges and are creatively innovative, B.Y.E is definitely the club for you!

ADVENTURING BEYOND BATES

STUDYING ABROAD

On average, 60% of each graduating [illegible] class chooses to study abroad at some point in their [illegible] career. Either spending an entire semester in a [illegible] environment or a Bates Off-Campus Short Term class, there is ample of opportunity to study off campus, and many students choose to do so. This opportunity gives the students a chance to learn about another place while living in it.

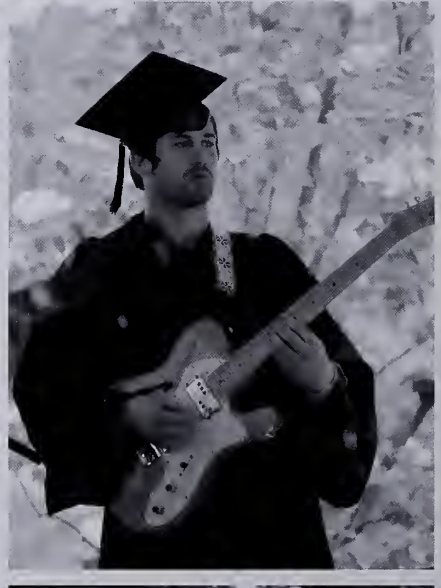
Foundations That Move Us



COMMENCEMENT 2011 REMARKS
FRANK GLAZER
RECIPIENT OF THE HONORARY DEGREE DOCTOR OF FINE ARTS

Since making his concert debut at the age of 12 in 1927, Frank Glazer has become an international famed pianist and Bates' artist in residence since 1980. He reached this level of success through his passion for music.

President Hansen, honored guests, members of the Class of 2011 and their families:

I would like to congratulate and salute the graduating class for having successfully completed four years of arduous study, and also to share with you a few ideas that I've taken note of during my 75 years of teaching and interacting with people in many countries during times of peace and war.

These ideas if acted upon may be helpful to you as they were for me. Of course, the circumstances are entirely different, but the principles, call them truisms, remain the same.

In addition to having the attributes of self-reliance, self-discipline, the capacity for work and faith in one's mission, all of which are good and important starting points, I believe that development as a human being is best served by hardly ever saying, "I can't" or "I won't."

Sometimes, others may see possibilities in us that we are totally unaware of. And if, instead of saying, "I can't" or "I won't," we act upon these possibilities, our lives may be immeasurably enriched and we may thereby enrich other people's lives.

I've discovered also that when our applications are rejected, there is no point in dwelling on our disappointment, because this rejection may turn out to be a great blessing in disguise.

One notable example: During the war in France, my commanding officer was determined that I be given a direct commission in the field to become an officer, because I was doing officer's work for private first-class pay. He applied to two different areas of service, and both were denied. I didn't realize then how fortunate I was, because had this effort succeeded I would have had to agree to stay in the military for one extra year, and had I done that, I would never have met my wife, to whom I owe many of my accomplishments during the course of 54 years of our most wonderful marriage, in addition to a great friendship six years before that.

If you have faith in your mission, your goal, your dreams, I urge you to remain true to this commitment, which is at the very core of your existence. In other words, be true to yourself. Sometimes, well-intentioned friends may try to divert you from your objective, for reasons of expediency, perhaps for the attainment of greater financial gain. Or, if you should decide you need to change course temporarily they may assume you have made a crucial wrong turn that would ruin your career, whereas you know it is only a detour which seems necessary at the time. But they won't understand this.

Any compromise here may be the source of your greatest regret, with concomitant loss of your self-respect.

Being optimistic is also very helpful because for one thing, one feels better. Furthermore, there are times when we can all do with a bit of help, whether it is financial or moral support in our work. Fortunately, there are people who want to help but wouldn't do so if they perceive us to be saddled with negative attitudes.

You remember the old adage, "Smile and the world smiles with you, weep and you weep alone"? I have a beautiful Steinway piano given to me 64 years ago by friends because they were pleased with how I answered the questions about my experiences during the war. They told me that of all the young people they knew who came back, including their son-in-law, who had been a captain in the Air Force, I was the only one who didn't complain about having served.When I was telling them about my experiences, I had no idea they were taking note of my attitude.

The idea of being persistent may be a cliché for you, but it is terribly important. It saved one of my graduate students at the Eastman School of Music from having to go to war in Vietnam. He had a teaching fellowship, and to avoid being drafted in the military, he had to provide the induction board with proof that he was carrying a full load, which was a requirement to avoid military service.

Oddly enough, no one in six different offices he went to knew the answer. But because of his persistence, he decided to go back the first one, the Registrar's Office, and this time someone came up with the answer.

On the lighter side, I like to cite the fact of our great composer Schubert. He was his parents' 12th child. And had they stopped after 11, think what we would have missed.

Finally, I believe it serves no useful purpose to compare oneself with another person. Each of us is unique. We are dealt a certain hand at birth, over which we have no control. But we have a lot to say about how we play the game. My mother didn't care about any of her children becoming rich or famous. What concerned her was that each one be a decent person.

Remember that love it not only the beginning and the end, but like the infinity of dots on a line it is all things in between. So, with good grace, accept yourself for who you are and will be, without worrying about who you aren't, and never will be.

Do your best and let time do the rest. And keep smiling. Thank you.

COMMENCEMENT 2011 REMARKS
RECIPIENT OF THE HONORARY DEGREE DOCTOR OF HUMANE LETTERS

Through various fields of interest, Evelynn M. Hammonds, rose to become MIT's first African American female tenured professor and a dean of Harvard College. Throughout her various careers she faced failures and achieved many accomplishments that created the professor she is today.

Thank you to all of you: President Hansen, members of the Board of Trustees, Bates faculty members, parents, siblings and friends; and a hearty congratulations to the Class of 2011.

It's really a tall order to offer wisdom to a captive audience already over-supplied with advice. So in mulling over what I might best offer you in this final moment of your undergraduate career – a four-year stretch in which many smart people have offered you their opinions, and from which you may well be ready to move on without yet another speech from a well-meaning professor – I thought about the many, many Commencement speeches I've heard, and about one of the people who did it best, year after year, decade after decade.

A colleague of mine passed away just a few months ago. His name was Peter Gomes. He was the Plummer Professor of Christian Morals and the preacher in Memorial Church. He served Harvard University for more than 40 years. But before he was at Harvard, he was at Bates, where he was a member of the Class of 1965 and later a Trustee.

Peter was nationally known for his stance on tolerance. He was a bundle of apparent contradictions: a religious, gay, Baptist, black, professor, Republican, Afro-Saxon (that was his term). From this complex life experience, and from a lifetime of careful reflection, Peter distilled vast wisdom that integrated powerful qualities of mind with a great capacious heart. With these gifts, he became a champion of tolerance in every arena of his life.

I'd like to pass long some of that thoughtfulness and generosity on to you today as you step forward into your lives in the larger world beyond Bates College.

Bates has already provided you with a meaningful example of integrating the intellectual and moral. As you all well know, your college was founded by radical abolitionists, and has the unusual status of having been coeducational and multiracial on an equal basis since it opened its doors in 1855.

As Peter memorably put it, when speaking at your Sesquicentennial, this makes Bates quite peculiar in the best of ways. He went on to reminisce, that "at Bates, we were always tested and told to challenge the conventional wisdom, and most of us did. We existed in an unconventional world. And if we are true to our Bates identity and inheritance, we continue to be very peculiar people in a very ordinary world. That is a claim that I think we should celebrate and treasure; it's part of our uniqueness."

But what I'd like to urge you to do today is not only celebrate your peculiarities, whatever they may be. And, given that among the many of you here today you represent 35 states and 42 countries, I have no doubt of the diversity of your origins. And I also fully trust that you carry with you a huge range of talents and interests and unusual qualities of mind and use them to transform the world in your image.

Now, when you are different and somewhat peculiar, there can be a great deal of pressure from the world to do the same thing, to fit within the roles that have already been scripted for you, to resolve apparent contradictions by erasing them I'd like to urge you to do something different.

I'd like you to try your hand at failing, and, by failing, to discover something more about your own fortitude and, in time, about the way you can shift the expectations of the larger world with your success in unexpected places.

In college, I spent a few summers working at Bell labs, working to do laser physics. While I studied at Spelman College, my small college didn't have a lot of money for fancy equipment. I had never even seen a picture of the kind of carbon dioxide laser I would be working with I arrived at the labs that summer.

Now, one of my jobs was to build circuits for the laser controller. My first circuit didn't work at all. Neither did my tenth. I built circuits for weeks, and none of them worked. I was saved by the generosity of my mentors, inspired by their spirit of adventure, and pulled through by my own sheer stubbornness.

So, I'm here to tell you that by the second summer, I was the master of circuit-building and the laser. And, later, in many ways, because of that experience I became the first African American woman tenured through the ranks at MIT [applause].

The experiences I had at the lab, rocky as they were, let me see things that I otherwise would have been blind to, and later made it possible to do new work on the roll of race and gender in science and to contribute changing the culture of science. But the fact is, sometimes being peculiar makes doing a hard thing even harder. Whether because you haven't had access to the same resources as others, or because people have assumed you aren't cut out for certain work, or because you yourself are afraid that there might not be a place for you.

To tolerate failure and frustration requires, if you will excuse the alliteration, fortitude.

In one of his many influential books, Peter Gomes defined fortitude as "that moral quality that allows us to persevere when others would easily give up or give in. It is the fuel of the long-distance moral runner, who despite inner fatigue and apparent outward success of others, nevertheless keeps on keeping on."

Bates was founded by long-distance moral runners. They, like me and like you, met with frustrations and trip wires, both pragmatic and social and psychological. What I hope for you, like the strongest of your forbearers, that you will do what is right for you and what is right for the world, in the most creative and peculiar ways. You will fail. You should fail. And if you stick with it, and let your peculiarities become assets, you will succeed. And when you succeed, remember those moments at which you failed, and think you how might extend your hand to those who walk in similar paths behind you, and, hopefully, you'll be a beacon for them.

Congratulations. I look forward to the world that you will help to build.

COMMENCEMENT 2011 REMARKS
RECIPIENT OF THE HONORARY DEGREE DOCTOR OF SCIENCE

In 1992, Robert S. Langer became the youngest person to be elected to all three United States National Academies. By dreaming big and never giving up on his dreams, he was able to achieve an honor that was rare amongst academics.

I want to congratulate all of you. Graduation from a school as fine as Bates is a wonderful achievement, and you and all your families deserve to be very proud. I just want to congratulate all of you.

In considering the messages I want to leave with you today, I thought I'd mention two, which will actually echo some of what you have just heard, though I think I'll say it a little differently. But I really agree with those messages.

My messages are two-fold. First, try to dream big dreams, dreams that can change the world and make it a better place. Secondly, if things start to look bad, no matter how bad they look, don't ever give up on those dreams.

I thought I would share with you my own struggles and decisions when I was a student to illustrate some of these points. When I finished colleges, perhaps like some of you, I didn't know what I wanted to do career-wise. I graduated in the 1970s with a degree in chemical engineering, and some of the parents and grandparents in the audience might remember at that time, just like a few years ago, there was a gas shortage. But it was even worse in the 1970s, because not only did the price of gas go way, way up, but at least in Boston where I lived, you had to wait at the gas station for two hours to get your car filled up.

But the consequence of that was that if you were a chemical engineer, you got a lot of job offers. Nearly all of my classmates in the 1970s joined oil companies. They had many, many openings and they paid very, very high salaries. I actually got over 20 job offers from oil companies, actually four from Exxon alone. I also got offers from Shell and Chevron and others. I think the only company that didn't offer me a job was British Petroleum. And I don't think they interviewed at MIT.

One of those job interviews made quite an impression on me. I went to this interview at Exxon, and one of the engineers said to me that if we could just increase the yield of a particular petro-chemical by .01 percent, wouldn't that be wonderful. "That would be worth billions of dollars," he said. I remember flying back to Boston that night thinking, "I really don't want to do that."

But what did I want to do? I had this dream of wanting to use my background to improve people's lives. And I'd spent a lot of time as a student starting a school for poor high school kids, and developing a new chemistry and math curriculum. One day, I saw an ad for an assistant professor to do just that at City College in New York. I wrote them a letter, but they didn't write me back.

But I really liked that idea, so I found all the ads that I could to do that. I found about 40. And I wrote to all those schools, and none of them wrote me back.

That wasn't going so well. So another idea I had to help people was through health-related research, so I applied to a lot of hospitals and medical schools, and they didn't write back either. But then one day, one of my friends told me that I should write to Dr. Judah Folkman, who was a surgeon. He said, "Sometimes, he hires unusual people".

I did what at that time seemed like a huge risk to all engineers, and started doing research in a hospital. It might seem more common today, but at that time, no chemical engineer had worked in a surgery lab before.

I began working on two problems: Trying to isolate and discover the first substances to stop blood vessels from growing into cancer tumors; therefore helping to stop cancer. And second, developing plastics that could release these and other substances for really long times in the body. And before I tackled these problems, no one had been able to develop ways to do this. In fact, scientists kept telling me that it was impossible to do it. Maybe the only thing that I had going for me was that I just hadn't read the literature saying that it was impossible.

So I spent two years working on this. I found over 200 different ways to get this to not work. But finally, I made a discovery and we did get it to work. I should add that these findings were initially met with great skepticism by the scientific community, which was very disappointing to me. But over time, many people and companies began using what we did, and it's led to new treatments for cancer, heart disease, certain forms of blindness, and many other medical problems. Subsequently, our lab made discoveries in nanotechnology and even also new ways of creating new tissues, like skin for burn victims.

I am really thrilled that even though my career path was not straightforward, and it may not be straightforward for many of you either, which is OK – in fact fine – that it's been a journey that's enabled me to realize the dreams that I had of the good that science can do for the world.

If I had any advice, any words of wisdom for the graduates in this audience, it would be to dream big dreams, about how you can do things to help people and improve the world. But there may be many, many times when you try to do something, whatever that dream is – developing a new product, could be an article or a book – whatever your dream is, many people may tell you that it's impossible, that it will never work, that you'll never achieve it.

But I think that's very rarely true. If you really believe in yourself, if you're persistent and work hard, there's very little that is truly impossible. Thank you, and-again, my sincerest congratulations to all of you and your families.

It seems like only yesterday that you were a bright-eyed little girl, anxiously heading off to pre-school, with a level of determination and excitement that we will never forget. You were on a mission then, much like you have been all your life, especially now as our proud and deserving college graduate. We were truly blessed when you were born, not only because of what we had, but more importantly, because of what you had. You possessed a very extraordinary spirit; one filled with pure happiness, joy, and unbridled goodness. You would light up every room you entered, always, without exception. Mom often shares the story that not many babies would look up into your eyes, smile, and then roll-over to sleep whenever it was time to go to bed; truly a very special child. Your Dad will always remember your first camping trip. You were only seven years old, the youngest camper surrounded by much older children and so many adults. Most children would have been shy, quiet, and reserved in a situation as this, but not you. At story-telling time when we were all-around the campfire, you ran the show. Your stories made us laugh uncontrollably throughout the night, and your spirit drew us in, and captured us completely. Now, that very special little girl has grown into a very special and very beautiful young woman. Your graduation means that it is time for us to share you with the rest of the world. On this occasion, our loving message is to always follow and cherish your dreams, always stay confident in your natural talents, and never stop believing in yourself. We know without question, that our beautiful daughter will create many beautiful tomorrows. And remember forever, you are the best daughter a parent could ever have, or could ever have wished for; and the best sister a brother could ever have had. There is no word that expresses the measure of how much we love you, how proud we are, and how much we look forward to your journey ahead. Congratulations!

The world needs dreamers and the world needs doers.
But above all, the world needs dreamers who do.
-Sarah Ban Breathnach

Meredith, this is the first step in a journey of dreaming and doing.
Congratulations and good luck as you continue on your path.

To the staff of the yearbook: I would like to express my gratitude for all your commitment and dedication throughout the year to the book. It was an enjoyable experience working with all of you and without your help the book would not look like it does today. Jen, these past three years have been a great opportunity working with you and I would like to thank you for stepping up this year as Co-Editor-in-Chief. You have shown a dedication to the passion that has made it a joy to work with you. I know the book is being left in very capable hands and you will continue to move it forward. I have had a great four years on the Mirror staff and am excited to see the book to evolve under the continually growing staff. I wish you the best of luck!
